Product Support Resources

Product-related manuals, documents, and software can be found and downloaded on our product support webpage. To locate this page, go to the Router Models page at icr.advantech.com/support/router-models. You can use the QR code on the right as well.

Once you are on the router models webpage, you can select the model of your router. You can find the Documents to download section at the bottom of the page. Please reference the various tabs, such as Brochures, Manuals, Certificates, etc., containing documentation for the selected router.

There are two primary user documents on the Manuals tab available for each router.

Hardware Manual: Includes a detailed router description, ordering information, hardware description, and technical specifications. In addition, it contains information on how to power up the router and access the router's web interface.

Configuration Manual: Describes all router configuration options in the web interface, including examples and typical usage situations.
